

The Standard oil company is the largest corporation in the world. It employs 98,000 men.

The biggest goose ever raised in the west weighed 25 pounds and was killed at Sioux City. We presume Joe Mackin, of Chicago, was a bigger goose than that.

Dr. Burchard now reckons that because his three sons changed the destiny of a nation, he will become as immortal as the youth who fired the Ephesian dome.

The young Duke of Cambridge is to be made commander-in-chief of the British army. That will be like putting George William Curtis in command of a dredgeboat.

Mr. Cleveland has refused to accept another present. This time it was a gold-bound book of hymns. If the president-elect continues to refuse democratic presents his administration will not be altogether a failure.

Mr. Blaine is putting in from six to ten hours a day on his last volume of "Twenty Years of Congress." Because he didn't take the blues, throw up his book, and become a shadow of death, the democrats are disappointed and irritated.

The seven executive officers of the government are equal to the task of performing by themselves, or their subordinates, all the proper and necessary duties of the government. The proposed department of agriculture is an innovation out of harmony with the general system and altogether superfluous.

England is not so sharp as usual, or else she would arrest the dynamiters and hang every one of them. That country seems to blame the United States for the several recent attempts to blow up England, when the fact is the United States has no more to do with the dynamiters than the man in the moon.

In a recent lecture, Judge Tourgee said that unless the negroes are enlightened they will soon rise in rebellion against the whites in the south. The judge is mistaken. Ignorance and a low condition of dependence do not create rebellion. They rather prepare a race of people to silently endure oppression.

The great democratic tariff war has again broken out with more fury than ever, and will continue for the rest of the winter. The old campaigners are trying to muzzle Mr. Henry Watterson, but having some clearly defined ideas on the subject, and being an honest man who believes in saying what he means, he won't stay quiet.

A dispatch from New York says that a miser living in Columbia county in that state died last Friday, and his wife, who, with the undertaker for changing her $150 for putting some boards together for a coffin, which boards the miser had previously provided. In searching the house after the wife's death $35,000 in government bonds, $28,000 in bank certificates, and three bushels of pecanies were found. They had been so saving that they had used neither meat nor soap for twenty years.

There is a good chance for another quarrel between Chicago and St. Louis, as usual on social matters. The cause of the recent ill-feeling is given in a few lines: Miss Minniehahn, White Cloud's pretty daughter, is stopping in Chicago and wants to marry a white man. She is amiable and accomplished. She was in St. Louis not long ago, and four gentlemen of that city offered her their hands, but Minniehahn didn't take kindly to St. Louis gentlemen, and so she went to Chicago to look over the matrimonial field. Now suppose this charming young lady should find a husband in Chicago (and she might for times are hard) and White Cloud has plenty wouldn't the jealousy of St. Louis be rekindled with redoubled fury? St. Louis doesn't want Chicago to get ahead of her, not even in the matter of marrying squaws.

The democratic tariff reformers are taking off the mask, and there is no longer any need of the party occupying a disreputable position. Senator Vance, of North Carolina, told in Baltimore last Monday night what he proposed to do. "Before the election," said he, "my illustrious colleagues, the democratic leaders, knowing my ideas, patted me on the head and asked me to stand in a corner like a good little boy and keep quiet until the election was over. Like a good boy I did so, but now we have won I intend to come out of that corner and express my opinion on the subject which lies nearest to my heart." The subject nearest to his heart is bringing the tariff down to a reasonable basis. Before the election the democratic platform squeaked away on the tariff; since the election it squeaks one way only—toward free trade.

The advices from Milwaukee are telegraphed to the Chicago Tribune, showing that there has been a marked change in that city regarding the senatorial question. A dispatch says: "The result of the inquiry shows that there has been a great change in local sentiment during the week. A week ago the preponderance of sentiment here was in favor of General Fairchild. To-day's inquiries developed the fact that more than half of the leading republicans now favor Colonel Spooner. This change is partly the result of the belief that Colonel Spooner is to succeed in spite of the Milwaukee feeling heretofore shown in favor of Fairchild." A dispatch from Richard Center gives this information: "The state senator from this county, the Hon. N. L. James, is an act and not Colonel Spooner or man, and the members of the assembly, the Hon. C. G. Thomas, is personally favorable to Spooner also, but will be governed in his vote by the sentiment of his constituents."

THE REMOVAL POWER OF THE PRESIDENT.

There seems to be a doubt in the minds of many democrats and civil service reformers as to what effect the tenure of office act of 1887 would have upon President Cleveland in his attempts to make removals from office after the 1st of March, and before the terms, for which officers have been commissioned, have expired. To draw from a noted constitutional lawyer an opinion on the question, some one wrote to Mr. George T. H. Curtis to explain the president's power of removal.

This matter could not be delayed much longer, as the hunger and thirst of the democrats for office were growing more intense than ever. They want the offices now, or just as soon after the 1st of March as the new president can chop off official heads and put new ones on. Mr. Curtis says that during a recess of the senate, the president may suspend any officer who holds his place subject to removal, the name of a successor to be sent to the senate within thirty days after its reassembling. If rejected the president may send in one name after another until one is confirmed. But in no case is the suspended officer reinstated. In other words, suspension under the terms of the tenure of office act and its amendment is equivalent to the old time removal.

If the senate refuses to confirm any name sent by the president, the office simply remains in abeyance until so filled and the powers and duties incident to it are to be exercised in the meantime by another officer as may by law exercise them in case of a vacancy in the office. The conclusion is that while the senate may refuse to confirm the president's nominations, it cannot prevent him from exercising the power of removal inherent in his office. He may be prevented from putting his friends in, but not from removing his opponents.

According to Mr. Curtis, if the senate will not agree to any appointment the president may make to fill the place, the office will be in abeyance, and its duties under the law must be performed without fee, salary or emolument by such other officer as may by law exercise such powers in case of a vacancy in the office. It will be seen from this that there are many chances that the Watterson-Hendricks system of removals will likely get up an interesting dead-lock between the senate and the president.

CHRISTMAS DAY.

The twenty-fifth of December is universally observed in commemoration of the nativity of our Saviour. As a festival of the church, it was first observed A. D. 98. It has been denominated Christmas from the appellation Christ having been added to the name of Jesus to express that he was the Messiah, or the Anointed.

It is not known on what day Christ was born. There is no proof, traditional or historical, that he was born even in December, but in the church the anniversary was strong that the birth of the world's benefactor and redeemer should be duly celebrated, and a day back in A. D. 137, Pope Telephorus ordered a solemn feast in honoring that event, and held it on the 25th of December. In the fourth century, the bishop of Rome fixed the date of the Christmas on the 25th of December, and from that day to this, the christian world has recognized that as the anniversary of the birth of our Saviour.

Simply to give an historical truth, and show what a change has taken place in certain religious bodies regarding Christmas, it may be stated that the English Puritans and the Scotch Covenanters, very radical elements of the christian world, protested stoutly against the observance of Christmas, and so she went to Chicago to look over the matrimonial field. Now suppose this charming young lady should find a husband in Chicago (and she might for times are hard) and White Cloud has plenty wouldn't the jealousy of St. Louis be rekindled with redoubled fury? St. Louis doesn't want Chicago to get ahead of her, not even in the matter of marrying squaws.

But Christmas, in modern times, not only celebrates the coming of Him who gave the world so much of civilization and of Christianity, but it brings joy and happiness to the millions of homes throughout all Christendom. It brings to friends, to parents, and to children, the gifts that tell of friendship, of affection and of love. Whether the Saviour of mankind and the redeemer of the world was born on the 25th of December or not, the celebration of his coming, fills the homes of the people with joy and gladness at least once a year.

His Slippery Glass Eye.

"The Square," says the author of "The Hoosier Schoolmaster," wore one glass eye and a wig. The glass eye was constantly slipping out of focus, and the wig turning around sideways on his head whenever he addressed the people of the "Flat Creek District." Had spectacle-maker's Hair Balsam been used and promoted the growth of the natural hair. It also restores the natural color to hair which has faded or become gray. Clean, elegant, beneficial, highly pertained.

Shocking Scene in a St. Louis Cellar—Find of an Old Woman Aged 103 Years—Piercy's Ghostly Story.

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 24.—The report that an old woman was dead, found in a cellar, and a reporter to visit the old tumble-down house at 610 Chouteau avenue. The front door was unfastened in vain, no response from within to the repeated raps and knocks. Application was made to a rear door was unsuccessful, continuing the search the woman of the colored woman from the adjoining house, the "old woman's dead." The warped old door, through the split panels of which the wind whistled, was strained out of place by the crumbling decay. A stout push threw it from its frame, removing the curtain from a horrible scene. A starved old, shrunken body lay on the floor, its head resting on a table, its hands clasped in prayer. A single candle, in a glass on the table, cast a feeble light on the ghastly scene. The body was cold and stiff, and the face was a mere skin and bone. The woman was found in a state of extreme emaciation, and the cause of her death was attributed to starvation. The body was found in a cellar, and the cat was the only attendant.

Failure of a Strike Indicated. PITTSBURGH, Pa., Dec. 24.—Latest information from the river coal districts indicates another addition to the list of unsuccessful strikes among the miners. According to the Associated Coal Operators, the strike in the western part of the district, where the miners were all to have come out Monday for an advance of wages to a 5 cent basis. This result has not been accomplished. Five miles in the fourth pool, and almost as many more in the other pools, are still running underground as to the strike, and the prospect of getting them out is very unfavorable. The miners of the fourth pool held a meeting Monday at which about fifty men were present. The result was unsatisfactory. They will hold another meeting at which it is thought it will be determined whether that pool will keep up the strike or go back to the mines. The outlook is very discouraging, and it is thought that another week will see the miners back at work at the old wages.

The Illinois Senators. SPRINGFIELD, Dec. 24.—Congressman W. R. Morrison is in the city on Monday night of Tuesday in consultation with Gen. John M. Palmer and Palmer's law partner, ex-Senate Senator Shatt. The result is that the political groups are active, and among the new stories is one that Palmer will be a candidate for the United States senate. Whether this is based on assurance that the general is to go into the Cleveland cabinet, or is a part of a combination for the defeat of Harrison, are matters of conjecture. Morrison is reported to have expressed the belief, however, that the Democratic members from the northern part of the state are seriously divided on the senatorship, and that consequently the nomination was not to him at the end. He has secured quarters here for the contest.

The Salvation Army Men. FALL RIVER, Mass., Dec. 24.—A considerable riot occurred at the Salvation Army meeting Tuesday night. There were no policemen present except two special constables. Several of the principal disturbers were ejected. One young fellow refused to be ejected and a free fight resulted which soon became general. In the height of the confusion Judge Blandish, who was among the audience, jumped on a seat and called upon all good people in the room to join in a prayer for the preservation of order. Somebody ran to the police station and told Capt. McMahon, who went over and made a quick end to the row by marching the ringleaders to the police station.

Casting a Big Gun. BOSTON, Dec. 24.—About fifty people gathered at the entrance of the South Boston iron works Tuesday to witness the casting of one of the experimental guns ordered by the United States government. It was a beautiful sight. For thirty minutes the molten metal, golden-lined and sparkling, flowed from three funnels in the iron mold which was buried in the earth to the depth of forty-five feet. The casting was quite successful. The dimensions of the gun are, rough cast, 120 tons; when finished, fifteen tons; length, forty feet; bore, twelve inches.

The Kilbourne-Thompson Case. WASHINGTON, Dec. 24.—The subcommittee of the house committee on judiciary, having under consideration the memorial of John G. Thompson, of Ohio, paying for an appropriation to reimburse him for personal expenses in defending himself against the charges and brought by Hallie Kilbourne, has agreed to recommend to the full committee that Thompson be given a reasonable sum to cover his expenses. The committee at the last session recommended an appropriation of $8,000 to liquidate the judgment given Kilbourne in the courts, and the recommendation is now to be reversed.
